THIS COUNTRY'S DECISION HAS BEEN MADE

A destroyer helping to maintain communications with Iceland, where the United States is maintaining a garrison, is fired upon by a German submarine. A freighter plying between the United States and supply heads for Great Britain in the Red sea is sunk by a bomber. Another freighter carrying supplies to Iceland is sunk.

There will be more incidents of the same nature, it is reasonable to believe. The United States is committed to a policy of using the seas to effectuate its promise of aid to Great Britain and its allies. The ramifications of the promise and the policy are beginning to penetrate public consciousness. Germany and the United States are not at peace. They are fighting an undeclared war.

This country's decision was made in the lend-lease act and subsequent executive orders putting the act into effect. The United States thereby served notice on Germany that it was going to participate in the war to the extent that it saw fit, which meant sending supplies to Germany's opponents. What is becoming plain now is that the supplies would be blocked and the policy of freedom of the seas challenged whenever Germany was crowded into a position where it either had to take action or submit to injury in its war effort. Apparently, that time now is at hand. Apparently, Germany has decided to take action.

It would have been to Germany's advantage, of course, to isolate the United States from the war; Hitler probably counted on it when he undertook a project of conquest that could not succeed without the acquiescence of this country. What Hitler failed to take into account was the way the United States has remained isolated and at the same time has begun to make its weight felt in sending supplies to the belligerents. For him it is an intolerable situation. He does not want to take on this nation as a belligerent, and he cannot afford to let United States supplies flow in ever increasing amounts to the countries he already is fighting.

For the first time since the war started, the initiative has been taken away from Germany. When the first shipload of material made in America reached one of Germany's opponents under the terms of the lend-lease act, the United States took the initiative in its role of the big question mark in World War II. It ceased to be a question mark and became an exclamation point.

EVERYTHING SHIPSHAPE

One of the points—perhaps the main one—expected to be discussed in the forthcoming presidential address is how far the United States will go in the waging of war without declaring war.

The waging of war is a prerogative of congress. A rigid same time, those who believe the United States already is waging war without exercise of the congressional prerogative have a weakness in their case.

Technically, everything is shipshape from the legalistic point. When the mandatory arms embargo was lifted to aid the Allies, Germany was theoretically qualified to obtain American supplies; it was not specified that the Allies were to be aided. Establishment of a neutrality patrol was intended to bar American waters to belligerency; Germany was not specified. Great Britain was not specified as the recipient of idle government-owned ships, or as the beneficiary of the trade-in policy authorized by congress for immediate transfer of surplus war supplies. The lend-lease act does not specify any nation; Germany conceivably might ask for benefits under the act, though it is inconceivable that it would obtain them. When German and Italian ships were seized, the action was ostensibly to prevent sabotage. The United States has refrained from committing any overt act of war.

It is a quibble, of course, to say that the neutrality of the United States has been kept intact, because it hasn't. It merely has been preserved in a legalistic form, which has relatively little bearing on the actual facts. Now that the actual facts are beginning to challenge the legalism, it looks as though at least part of the confusion in the public mind and possibly all of the bitterness in the congressional mind could have been averted by a more candid approach to the problem of blocking the kind of "new order" Germany is trying to inflict on the world.

There must be something wrong with the photographs showing members of the Russian commission in this country to buy planes. Not a bushy beard in the lot. Nor a clenched fist. Nor a peasant's blouse. Nor a furtive look. Just neatly dressed, clean-shaven men who look as though they might be posing for someone taking souvenir pictures of a convention.

Rep. Martin Dies surely will be disappointed in behalf of the millions of his countrymen who do not expect Russians even to look respectable. The plain truth is, these fellows look more respectable than Americans on similar missions to foreign countries, particularly when one of the Americans is Harry Hopkins. Clothes don't make the man, of course, but they have a lot to do with the impression the man makes.

What it boils down to is this. If Russians and Communists and fellow travelers ever begin to look like Englishmen and Canadians and Americans, the latter will have to borrow Big Joe's peasant blouses and grow mustaches to keep matters straight. It isn't fair for Russians to look respectable. It isn't what we respectable people have been led to believe.

RED REBOUND

Even if no purpose is served, one type of comment on that letter which Rep. Dies wrote to President Roosevelt about traces of redness in the office of price administration is significantly common.

It turns to the effect that whatever else Rep. Dies has in mind, he has put the finger on something in Washington that needs looking into in more than the office of price administration. Why is it, the comments ask, that the taunt of redness apparently can be made at the expense of so many New Deal agencies? In short, where there is so much red smoke what about the red fire?

Whenever the New Deal gets tired of explaining why this official and that official is not red but merely got some redness on his fingers from being close to genuine Reds, the problem can be kept from getting worse by signifying that henceforth the pinkies should look elsewhere for work. That might also be an easy solution for the problem redness has created in union labor circles.

THE STARS SAY:

For Friday, September 12

A DAY of surprising activity and liveliness is presaged from the predominant planetary influences, both lunar and mutual. A sharp and sudden visitation will mean rapid advancement in putting over adventurous and audacious propositions, possibly in connection with writings, publicity, publications, travel, or transportation, and involving business, professional or cultural life or public relations or service. Great gains should follow the quick grasp of opportunities.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of rapidfire events and adventures, with sudden and surprising turns that should spell dramatic achievements. This in connection with public affairs, inventions, travel, writings, publications or promotions. Large organizations are cooperative. Bold ideas, innovations and revolutionary changes from the old order will give splendid openings to lucrative results.

A child born on this day will be exceedingly versatile and creative, with commercial instincts above the average, as well as much originality, artistic expression and intellectuality.

In other words, as we understand it, the AAA is preparing to ask for more plowing and less plowing under—from which we'd assume a lesson has been learned.

Another thing we note is that, up to the moment, Leningrad, formerly Petrograd, shows no signs of desiring to become Hitlergrad.

SKIN CARE IS IMPORTANT

From Standpoint of the Mother-To-Be

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
Speaking yesterday of the diet of the prospective mother I was reminded of another feature of prenatal care, which is the care of the skin. The skin seems to be particularly sensitive during this expectant period.

The skin plays an important part in heat regulation and other functions of the body and assists

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

In the climination of waste products so it has a double part to play during this period and needs regular care. Of course, this simply means it should be kept clean and protected from irritations, such as clothes, etc.

There are certain characteristic conditions that occur during the expectant period for the mother, which are localized in the skin. Certain skin diseases are found only at this time.

Some of these skin conditions are due to disturbance of the ductless glands. For instance, deposits of pigment in the skin and darkening of the skin in spots. Flushing and dilatation of the blood vessels is common. Itching during the last half of the period of gestation is so common as almost to be part of the process. It may be general or localized. Varicose veins of the legs often aggravate or may even be the cause of this condition.

Small Red Spots

A definite skin disease which occurs at this time and no other is called "prurigo gestationis" and it occurs in otherwise healthy women. It consists of small pinhead to lentil-sized red spots. It is usually on the arms, forearms, hands, legs or feet. The onset is gradual and it may or may not be accompanied by itching.

complicated by itching. The birth of the baby immediately terminates it and that is about all that really cures it, although some relief can be obtained by the use of soothing creams and lotions.

Herpes gestationis is a blistering eruption which also occurs at this period and usually early, stopping spontaneously about the fourth month.

A Red Eruption

Erythema gestationis consists of red eruption on the skin. It has, sometimes, quite severe symptoms with intense burning and itching, and elevation of temperature.

Eruption of the gums is also a special condition which is a hazard at this time.

Most of the conditions respond to ordinary soothing ointments and lotions and no specific treatment has been found to be infallible.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Mrs. J. A. D.: "About two months ago I acquired the taste for head lettuce. Since then have been eating two or three heads every day. I eat all other foods too, but must have my lettuce. I am not pregnant. Is there any harm in lettuce?"

Answer: Not the slightest harm in lettuce. Eat all you want. It's too bad other people don't have such good habits.

F. W.: "I would appreciate some information on the drug benzedrine sulphate."

Answer: Benzedrine is a diffusible drug which stimulates the mental and other processes. It has been used by students who are studying for examinations and by athletes in competition. Many reports of harmful reactions are recorded from such use. It is a dangerous drug to use regularly or, in fact, to use at all except under a physician's directions.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Today's Pattern

SHIRTSOCK HAS NOVEL YOKE Pattern 4787

It's new—this shirtwaist frock with its "gothic" yoke that's so attractive! You'll like Pattern 4787 by Anne Adams for day-in, day-out wear. The high, plain neckline is enhanced by a buttoning down the length of the yoke; the darts below the yoke on either side control bodice fullness. The skirt has three panels in front for slim, lovely lines and graceful flare. If you'll notice, the neckline can be varied to a deep V, and the front opening laced together with contrasting ribbon. Just the sort of dress to wear for informal occasions and busy days about town—how about making it in wool-like spun rayon? Did you know that an illustrated Sewing Instructor is included to help you with details?

Pattern 4787 is available in misses' and women's sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 3 1/2 yards 36-inch material.

Well Water In Cream Separator Becomes Gasoline

TAYLOR, Miss., Sept. 11.—As long as the century-old well in the center of town remains, Taylor can thumb its nose at gasoline rationing.

The well has been a mystery (but a very satisfactory one) for the past seven weeks. Taylor's citizens have only to run its gasoline-saturated water through an ordinary cream separator and presto! they have a (well) brand of motor fuel.

The old well was dug by Taylor's first citizens more than 100 years ago and was first used as a watering-trough for horses and other stock.

The gasoline content was discovered by Elton Cain of Taylor, as he poured well water into his auto's radiator.

Taylor folks thought maybe it was a prank and the board of aldermen had the well cleaned out. But the gasoline kept coming.

Prof. R. R. Priddy of the Mississippi geological survey identified the gasoline as coming from a nearby filling station. But the proprietor couldn't find a leak in his tank.

The puzzle still hasn't been solved. And the gasoline not only keeps coming, but there are ever increasing quantities of gasoline in the water.

Alderman J. I. Hamilton says.

AGE LIMITS FIXED
FOR ARMY OFFICERS
(By Associated Press)
KINDER, La., Sept. 11.—Maj. Gen.
Robert S. Belknap, commander of the 37th Ohio division, asked today for the names of men affected by a new war department order fixing age limits for army officers.

While no official word was forthcoming, there were indications that several score officers of the 37th possibly would be relieved of active duty and returned home in October
—end of their year in federal service.

The age limit regulations were issued recently as "an initial step in a general program to insure that all officers serving with troops units are within the ages which permit efficient continuous performances of field duty under the arduous conditions of modern combat warfare."

Under the regulations, the maximum ages for officers are: major general in command of divisions,
62; brigadier generals, 63; colonels,
55; lieutenant colonels, 52; majors,
47; captains, 42; first lieutenants,
35; and second lieutenants, 30.

Belknap, at 49, is the youngest major general in the army.
The order directs that no officers
above age shall be assigned service with troops, and those already serving will be assigned other duty as far as is practical. Otherwise, all average officers will be relieved from duty upon completion of 12 months' service and returned to state national guard duty or to the reserve corps.

NAZIS THEMSELVES
SEAL UP BLOCKADE
WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Germany herself sealed "the ring of the Allied blockade" by invading Russia, the commerce department said today, and "shut off, for the time being at least, supplies of the utmost importance to the reich's war effort."

This conclusion was reached in an economic survey of Germany prepared for the department's foreign commerce weekly, which called attention to pre-invasion Nazi claims that food and raw materials
from Russia were of decisive importance in "breaking" the Allied blockade of continental Europe.

German agricultural journals
"emphasized repeatedly," the department said, the importance of further grain from the Soviet for maintenance of the German hog population.

The department also held that the loss of such products as petroleum, barley, cotton, manganese ore, asbestos and similar items was
of great added significance.

Another consideration, the department added, is the cutting off of trade from middle eastern and far eastern countries. This has put an end to heavy imports of soybeans from Manchuria and of cotton, hides, rice and other products
from Iran and Afghanistan.

At the same time, the department noted, Germany has slammed the door on the route that could bring the reich shipments of rubber, tin and other war essentials by way of Siberia.

GERMANS FACING RUSSIAN WINTER

Snow, Ice, Bitter Cold Will Be New Elements In Drive On Moscow

By CARL C. CRANMER
NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(The Special News Service)—Through a critical summer—for 12 weeks—the Russians have stood off the Germans, barring a sudden collapse of Soviet defenses, Adolf Hitler's armies, which he has trained for blitzkrieg, are fated to endure the fogs, rains, snows and gales of a six to nine month Russian winter.

The war dispatches make it clear that winter already is setting in.
Steady, pouring rains and fog are reported from the northern front
about Leningrad and Smolensk, west of Moscow. A German army reporter speaks of "bottomless mud"
about Leningrad.

Rains—Then Winter
These are the autumn rains
which will extend to the Ukraine
and be succeeded by the long, severe winter. Not until April in the south, until May or June in the north, will there again be warm weather. And even then there will be the brief spring when the thaw makes a morass of Russian plains and bogs. Huge ice blocks will grind and crunch along the broad, deep rivers then at flood stage.

The autumn rains and the spring floods may interfere more with the campaign plans of the German generals than the actual winter.
Fog and rain ground scouting and bombing planes. Tanks and supply trucks become mired in the mud.
Floods and ice flows sweep away pontoon bridges. Many a disaster can occur to an army depending upon a tenuous line of communications under such conditions.

It is the common German soldier who will hate the winter. He will have to march and attack through snow two feet, even three or four feet deep. Terrible winter gales will sweep his camp.

Snapping below-zero temperatures will numb his body. Added to the immense casualties, the Germans have suffered in fighting will be the frozen feet, hands and faces which may send tens of thousands of them to the hospitals.

Crimea Only Warm Spot
In the winter war of 1939-40, the Finns and Russians fought in 40 below zero temperatures north of Leningrad. Extreme cold, however, extends far south to all Russia except the Crimea, a narrow strip
north of the Black sea and parts of the Caucasus.

Kiev, the capital of the Ukraine,
is about the same attitude as Newfoundland or Winnipeg. The Caucasus is about the same as New York City or Salt Lake City. Moscow's latitude is about the same as Edmonton or the south shore of Hudson bay. Leningrad is about the same as the southern tip of Greenland or Anchorage, Alaska.

But too much cannot be read into these latitudes, for Russia is a great land mass, untempered by warm waters.

By December it is cold enough in the Ukraine to freeze over the rivers. Cattle and sheep perish in the blizzards of mid-winter. Even the blizzards of the Caspian sea freeze, and occasionally fishermen are trapped on floes there.

By the end of November Leningrad to the north is closed in by ice, and stays that way until May, sometimes June.

The Russians who started their invasion of Finland on Nov. 30, 1939, found themselves stopped by deep snowdrifts almost immediately.

Pictures of Napoleon struggling back from Moscow through the blizzards, however, should not cause Americans to think the same fate is certain to meet Hitler's armies.

Some Advantages Offered
Skies over the present front probably will be their clearest in the winter months. The blue winter skies will be favorable to aerial operations. The rivers, when thickly frozen over, no longer will be formidable barriers to tanks and masses of infantry. The roads, now deep in mud, will be hard and firm for the movement of supplies.

Hard as the winter may be on the common soldier, it may not be the obstacle for the generals that mud and rain now presents. The winter will be as cold for the Russians as for the Germans.

Much will depend upon who is best prepared for the weather.
Fragmentary reports indicate the Germans are preparing millions of fur coats for their soldiers, ordering skis to give them mobility,
buying horses to substitute wagons
and sleighs for their motor supply columns.

If the Russians are as ill-prepared with warm clothing and thick boots as they were in the Finnish campaign, they may be worse off than the Germans when their own winter descends upon them.

One advantage the Soviets may have—the advantage of positions and trenches already prepared, and warm, largely undisturbed towns,
cities and farm houses behind them.

The Germans will find it difficult to dig trenches in the frozen earth when they advance. Joseph Stalin's scorched earth policy will leave little shelter behind them.

Strike At Timken's
CANTON, Sept. 11.—Daniel Hurley
of Cleveland, a labor department conciliator sought settlement of a strike of 85 men in the forging division of the Timken Roller Bearing
Co. plant here today.

I. W. Abel, president of the striking CIO-Steel Workers Organizing Committee local, said he requested federal mediation when negotiations with company officials failed. Tim-ken spokesmen said the strike developed when testing operations were shifted from hammer to press operators. Abel charged the shift followed the union's rejection of a proposal which would have lowered wages.

who died at birth at the home
Wednesday night.

STUDIES LUKENS'
"3RD CONFESSION"
(By Associated Press)
AKRON, Sept. 11.—Judge Walker
B. Wanamaker studied today the admissibility of a purported "third confession" by Albert B. Lukens, 58-year-old church janitor charged with slaying Miss Ruth Zwickler, 24,
a music teacher.

State testimony presented to the court yesterday in the absence of the jury was designed to show that Lukens freely admitted he choked
the pretty young pianist when she resisted his advances, and then stuffed her body in a furnace.

Lukens testified that in his first confession he said the girl fell, and that in the second he admitted pushing her, but maintained the third statement was uttered after he had been hit and kicked by Detectives Gilbert Mosely and Robert Prease. Both officers denied Lukens' claims.

Judge Wanamaker questioned the defendant about what the court termed "discrepancies" in Lukens'
story of being abused by police.
Yesterday's testimony concerned the admissibility of the third statement, and was not heard by the jury.

While on the stand, Lukens was cross examined about a repudiated statement when he was on trial for the 1898 killing of Julia Stiegler in Cincinnati, which resulted in two hung juries.

"The only evidence they had against me was that written statement," Lukens said. He later pleaded guilty to manslaughter in the case and was sent to Mansfield reformatory.

May Sell Bridge
POINT PLEASANT, W. Va., Sept.
11.—Plans for selling "Silver bridge"
to the city of Point Pleasant for $1,050,000 were disclosed today by municipal officials and Dr. Charles G. Holzer of Gallipolis, O., president of the West Virginia and Ohio River Bridge Co.

It spans the Ohio river between here and Kanawha, O. Holzer said 30-year, 3 per cent revenue bonds to be retired entirely by tolls, would be issued. The bonds are callable, however, Holzer said, making it possible for the bridge to become toll free before the 30-year period expires.

RAIN KEEPS FAIR ATTENDANCE DOWN

Race Program, Called Off.
Is Run Off With Today's Events

Team demonstrations will include:
"Home Gardening Does Pay," by Sara Finnegan and Helen Wernet of the Hanover Wide Awake club, who won first in the county elimination contest and third in the national contest in Columbus. A demonstration on "flower arrangement"
will be given by Esther and Twila Barbey of the Butler Sew Merry club, who won second in the county elimination contest.

Individual demonstrations will be given by Verna Freshley of the Butler Sew Merry club, who won first place in the county elimination, and by Esther Mayhew of the Winona Jolly Bunch.

Much keen competition among grange exhibits is noted, with artistic arrangements of every product grown on county farms, along with canned and baked goods, while no less interesting are the remarkable displays of the 4-H clothing clubs and school exhibits found in the lower exhibition hall.

Visitors to the fair also marveled
over the beautiful floral displays, and the works of the juvenile granges, while others were attracted by the booth of the County Public Health league where interesting charts and moving pictures of the work being done in combing tuberculosis are shown. Several commercial exhibits are also found there, while the basement of the building is given over to pumpkins, potatoes, squash, peaches, and other fruits and grains.

Fair Closes Friday
Automobile and tractor farm implement dealers along the midway were also kept busy explaining their latest models.

The night fair, including the Klein Special Attractions, livestock parade, and fireworks display, will be repeated tonight and tomorrow night.

Tomorrow will be the closing day
of the exposition, when all schools in the county will spend classes
in order that children may attend the "Kiddies day" fair. All pupils will be admitted free. School bands have also been invited to attend and assist in making the day a music carnival, for which each will be given a $25 award by the fair board. The afternoon attraction Friday will also feature youth, with pony races, bicycle races, and sprints for both boys and girls.

Editors Eat, Too
ENCINO, N. C.—The editor has discovered that four healthy youngsters are also hearty eaters," reads
an ad in E. L. Hinton's Encino Enterprise.

"In driving over the community
he has discovered many farmers
have a surplus of roasting ears, snap beans, garden produce and frying size chickens.

"You can trade any of these to the editor—or his wife—at market value on subscription accounts. The editor also likes to eat."

CRYSTAL FALLS, Mich.—Even
railroad trains are slowing down these days to avoid killing deer. Officials of the Milwaukee road have instructed their engineers to reduce speed on an eight-mile stretch near Parks' siding on the Iron-Baraga county line where 15 deer have been killed this season.

Theatre Attractions

Long-distance marriage in the modern manner, and its results,
form the gay theme of "My Life
With Caroline," Ronald Colman's
new starring vehicle, having its last showing tonight at the State theater.

"Bad Men of Missouri," showing
at the State Friday and Saturday,
is a rip-roaring saga of pioneer times, with Dennis Morgan playing the lead as Cole Younger, chieftain of the notorious gang of bank and train robbers that terrorized Missouri, Iowa and Kansas immediately after the Civil war.

Playing with Morgan are Wayne
Morris as Bob Younger, Arthur
Kennedy as Jim Younger, Jane
Wyman as Mary Hathaway, Victor
Jory as Banker William Merrick
and Sam McDaniel as the servant, Wash.

The Grand theater's double bill
for Friday and Saturday is "Thunder Over the Prairie," with Charles Starrett, Ellen O'Hearn, Cliff Edwards and Carl Shrum. The other half of the double attraction will be the Three Mesquites in "Saddle Mates" with Robert Livingston,

Bob Steele, Rufe Davis and Gail Storm.

taken as a fairly intact city or as a heap of debris.
An authorized commentator said the Germans were in a position to inflict much heavier punishment on Leningrad but were withholding their full might to give its citizens a chance to reconsider defense tactics.
The pamphlets, he said, emphasized that if civilians resist, the German army must regard them as enemies and act accordingly.
They warned that if a civilian house-to-house defense were attempted, Leningrad would be subjected to a more general bombardment.
Shells and air bombs up to now have been concentrated on food and munitions stores and other facilities to enable the city to withstand siege, it was asserted, with electricity and transport services marked out first for demolition.

Confederate Flags Returned In Move For Nation's Unity

LANSING, Mich., Sept. 11.—A plea for national unity is sending home 13 of the Confederacy's last tattered battle flags, 76 years after the close of the War Between the States.
The flags and three swords, captured by Michigan troops during the Civil War, will be given to southern states identified as their former owners at a ceremony here Sept. 20.
Gov. Murray D. Van Wagoner, who will make the presentations, said a pageant would stress "national unity in this time of emergency."
Invited to receive the relics were the governors of the 11 states which composed the confederacy — Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, South Carolina, North Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Louisiana, Georgia, Mississippi and Virginia—and two states represented in the Confederate government but which never seceded from the union, Missouri and Kentucky.
While several of these states have no claim to the relics, Gov. Van Wagoner said it was decided to ask all to take part in the celebration. Virginia will come away with the most flags, three, while North Carolina will get two.
Return of the relics was authorized by the state legislature at its last session, making Michigan one of the last of the northern states to take this action. States which still officially possess confederate flags include Wisconsin and Iowa.

ICELANDIC SHIP WAS SUNK IN JUNE

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—V. Thor, chairman of the Icelandic government trade commission, said today the 1,215-ton Icelandic vessel Hekla was sunk in late June by a submarine while enroute from Iceland to Canada.
Thor said the vessel was torpedoed and that 14 members of the crew were lost and six survivors were picked up by a British warship.
He thought the sinking took place June 29. United States armed forces did not occupy Iceland until July 7.
Thor said the Berlin radio announcement picked up by NBC's listening post in New York was the first positive information that the vessel was sunk by a German submarine.
The vessel was Icelandic-owned and flying the Icelandic flag, Thor said.

STEEL AREA CANAL BEFORE COMMITTEE

Struthers-Ohio River Waterway Urged First, Proponents Say

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Legislation to authorize a navigable canal in the rich mill area of northwestern Ohio will go before the house rivers and harbors committee with the approval of Chairman Mansfield (D-Tex.).
Aides of the chairman said hearings probably would begin on Sept. 23 as requested by Rep. Michael J. Kirwan (D-Ohio), a member of the committee.

Urge Struthers Canal

At the outset, proponents said they would urge early construction of a $37,000,000 waterway from the Ohio river to Struthers, Ohio. Chairman Mansfield has been an advocate of this program as well as proposals to build a canal all the way from the river to Lake Erie at a cost of $200,000,000.
Kirwan, who discussed the canal with President Roosevelt a year ago, advised Mansfield that advocates would need only one day to present their case. Opponents, who, Mansfield said, included the railroads, will be given an opportunity to present their objections.
If approved by the committee the canal legislation would be part of a general rivers and harbors bill to be introduced by Mansfield. This bill already includes projects costing upward of $750,000,000.

Stress Defense

If congress follows administration policy, appropriations will be asked only for works of a defense nature, leaving the others to be carried out as job-creating works after the war emergency.

Whether funds would be requested for an Ohio canal has not been decided, but proponents contended that the waterway would be valuable for defense because it would provide cheap transportation for raw materials used by steel mills and other industries in the region.

They suggested that the program was as important as the St. Lawrence seaway which President Roosevelt recommended as vital to defense.

Lima In Blackout

LIMA, Sept. 11.—A complete blackout under simulated wartime conditions will be staged here Saturday night. J. A. Howenstine, Lima aviator, will direct volunteer "air raid wardens" by short-wave radio from an airplane. The five-minute test is scheduled for 10:05 p. m.

and Ralph Budd, defense transportation adviser.

The group said it had not explored numerous charges that the reported shortage had been stressed to build support for cross country petroleum pipeline projects or similar charges but that these matters might have attention later.

"Our conclusions may best be summed up," the report said, "by stating that there is not a shortage of petroleum products—nor a shortage, as of this date, of transportation facilities—but that the whole frightening picture from the standpoint of the coordinator's office, seems to lie in the fact that the shortage, which has excited the activity of the coordinator, is really a 'shortage' in a large surplus which is desired."

All members of the committee, Senators Maloney, Radcliffe (D. Md.), O'Daniel (D. Tex.), Barbour (R. N. J.), and Burton (R. Ohio), signed the report.

In probably no other article one buys is it quite so difficult to determine real worth as in a piano. To any but an expert piano builder it is almost impossible to recognize the actual difference between an ordinary piano and a really fine, dependable instrument. When you choose a piano, you are making an investment for many years. Give first importance to a name that has established itself in its given field (rather than to apparent size of "discount" or "trade-in.") And, as backing for your investment through the years, choose a dealer whom you know to be dependable.

HERE IS AN IDEAL COUNTRY HOME!

This property is located on Route 14 and has a grand modern house of 10 rooms. New two-car garage and nice new basement barn. Also, 20 acres of land with a variety of fruit. This has a grand setting with a beautiful lawn and abundance of shade and shrubbery. This is like one of your old country estates. It could be used for several purposes. Would be grand for a convalescent home, splendid poultry and fruit farm. The produce could be sold right at your door and would bring retail prices.

I really cannot say enough for this property as I think it is one of the nicest places between Salem and Cleveland. Now, if you are interested in this property, it will be necessary for you to arrange an appointment with me as the owner does not care to bother showing the property. We have it for sale and it is our work to show the property. Is priced way below what the cost of building this house would be.

"Little World Series," Brooklyn Vs St. Louis, Starts Today

"If A Football Team Travels On Its Stomach, Look Out For Ohio State," Says Howell

By FRITZ HOWELL.
COLUMBUS, Sept. 11.—If a football team, like an army, travels on its stomach—look out for the 1941 edition at Ohio State.

We had a dinner date at the Bucks' training table last night, and the way those boys put away the grub reminded us of our old days among the Illinois harvest bands where heavy eating was a necessity, a custom, and an art.

We've sat at training tables before but this one was a revelation. The mothers and dads of the 41 lads on the Ohio squad need not fear that their boys will forget their manners—not with Head Coach Paul E. Brown sitting at the head of the table.

The boys and the coaching staff trooped into the Ohio Union dining room on the campus, each taking his allotted place and standing behind his chair.

Taps For Order

Brown picked up a spoon, tapped a glass tumbler, and quiet reigned. "Mr. Widdoes," Brown said, and Assistant Coach Carol Widdoes asked God's blessing as the squad stood with bowed heads.

Then came the food: Orange juice, a huge glass of it; asparagus soup, with plenty of crackers and butter; steak, medium rare, accompanied by a large baked potato with the jacket still on; an ear of corn as large as we used to raise out in the Sangamon river valley; apple sauce, and a salad composed of carrots, tomatoes, lettuce and celery. Large pitchers of fresh milk were numerous, and the boys filled their glasses often. Coffee was available, but only four or five imbibed. They topped it off with watermelon.

While Assistant Coach Eddie Bluckie was removing the last of his watermelon from his car, Brown tapped his glass again and the room quieted.

"Keep Plugging"
"Well, fellows," he said, "we did everything out there today that we had planned. We are right on schedule, and you boys did a noble job. No matter whether you are the first, second, third or fourth team, keep plugging away as you did today and we'll have a football team."

"Some of you asked if you could attend the baseball game tonight. If you care to, you have my permission. It certainly wouldn't hurt you, but if I were trying to make this team, I'd try to be in bed by 10:30 at the latest. You'll be stiff and sore tomorrow, after that long workout, but it will wear off soon."

If good food, hard work, a congenial but strict coaching staff, and a bunch of kids just like your son and mine are the ingredients from which a good football team are made—those Bucks shouldn't be so bad this fall.

Lack of Manpower Hits Ohio School And College Teams

(By Associated Press)
A pessimistic plait, born of shortage of manpower and the loss of stars to the army and industry, is rising from Ohio's football camps.

One school, Alfred Holbrook at Manchester, already has cancelled its schedule, and Marietta may be forced to follow suit. Ashland curtailed its program to five games because of a scarcity of players.

Coach Frank L. (Duke) Hayes of Marietta, who lost seven gridders to the army, said his schedule may be canceled unless a sufficient number of sophomores report for the initial practice Monday. One-fourth of the eligibles from last year's squad are working on defense jobs and may not return, he said.

Hayes' earlier efforts to obtain Ohio Conference approval of playing freshmen gridders failed, and he announced that he would rather abandon the sport than sever conference affiliation.

Only 18 Candidates
At Ashland, Coach Frank Lonero was determined to go through with his five-game schedule even though there was little reason to hope that more than 18 candidates will report.

The smallest squad in years—22 men—reported for Wooster college's opening drills yesterday, and Coach John Swigart said he didn't expect many more prospects to show up. Only seven lettermen reported.

The picture wasn't so dark at Case. John Carroll and Baldwin-Wallace.

Ray Ride greeted 31 prospective Case players. Tom Conley of Carroll put 30 Blue Streaks to work, and Coach Ray Watts of Baldwin-Wallace found 39 candidates from which to mold his Yellow Jackets.

They're Still Names
Frank Leahy, who favors husky brutes for his Notre Dame line, has a tackle named Jim Brutz. And Manhattan college has the worst quarterback you ever saw—Jim Worst.

BOWLING NEWS

A new bowling league, organized last night at the Grate alleys, will join the ranks of Salem strike and spare artists this season. The new loop, a 16-team unit from the Mullins Manufacturing Corp., is the largest in the city.

J. P. Martin was elected president of the group, with L. W. Berger as secretary-treasurer.

The league will get under way next Tuesday night at 7. A schedule will be announced later.

The league teams and captains are: Cabinets, Mercer; Press Room, DeFrenzo; Stores department, Sanderson; Tool and Die, Simpkin and Schuster; Time Study, Smith; Auto Finish, Copack; Cost department, White; Cutting department, Hippy.

Employment department, Culbertson; Enamel department, Lape-man; Production department, Berger; Wringer department, Pawcett; Tub department, Kercher; Inspection department, Bauman; General Office, Hochadel; Tryout, Seckley.

MONTREAL—Montreal's famous horse cables, who for 60 years have parked around the northern half of Dominion Square where they got tourist patronage and kept their horses in the shade, are bitter because the city council ordered them into the sun.

"As Gloomy As A Goal Line Fumble:" That's The Outlook For Western Reserve Eleven

CLEVELAND, Sept. 11.—Don't look for Western Reserve's Sun Bowl and Cleveland "Big Four" champions to do so well in the fall football wars.

Prospects are almost as gloomy as a goal line fumble for the Red Cats have lost four of their five seasons backs and four of seven regular linemen. They also have a new coach in Tom Davies, 44-year-old former star halfback for the University of Pittsburgh. Davies has been head coach at Allegheny, Rochester and Scranton universities.

While Davies plans few changes in the single wingback and punt formations used by his predecessor, Bill Edwards, a certain amount of confusion always is to be expected with a switch in coaching staffs. A much fatter salary check lured Edwards away to take over the professional Detroit Lions.

One Backfield Holdover
The only backfield holdover is Mickey Sanzotta, snaky halfback, while Reserve has lost Quarterback Paul Anderson, Halfbacks Johnny Ries and Dick Booth and Fullbacks Steve Belichick from the club which ran up a 26 to 13 triumph over Tempe (Ariz.) state teachers in the post-season bowl game at El Paso.

The only returning veteran linemen are Tackle Dick Luther, Guard Al Borland and End Paul Hudson, the Cats losing End Willis Waggle, Tackle Andy Logan, Guard George Noland and Center Jim Kershner.

"We're in a pretty tough situation—no kidding," glooms Athletic Director Karl Davis. "But we had some pretty good freshmen and we'll just have to develop a team. Thirteen men are back from our last year's squad of 27, but only four of these had two seasons of experience. So we are counting on 15 of last year's Freshmen to give us a squad of 28."

Freshman In Coast Guard
Western Reserve was expecting a lot from Herb Lynch, a freshman back from Meadville, Pa., but lost him to the coast guard. Herb Hines from New Philadelphia, best freshman guard, didn't make the grade scholastically.

The Red Cats have a tough eight-game schedule. In addition to their regular Cleveland foes—John Carroll, Case and Baldwin-Wallace—they are taken on Western Michigan (formerly Michigan State Teachers), Ohio U., Akron, Kent State and Miami.

Rivals Quarantined; Scots Go Gameless

WOOSTER, Sept. 11.—Athletic Director L. C. Boles is looking for a football game for Coach Johnny Swigart and his Wooster Scots for Saturday, Oct. 4. Gettysburg college, scheduled for that date, has been forced to cancel the first two games for the 1941 season.

Because of infantile paralysis in York county, Pennsylvania, health authorities there have postponed the opening of schools and Gettysburg college until Sept. 29.

Athletic Director C. E. Billheimer of Gettysburg has notified Boles that the authorities will not permit the football squad to meet for practices before that date.

Coach H. T. Bream will be unable to get his squad in shape for a game in less than a week's time.

Boles is contacting colleges in this section of the country hopeful that he will be able to fill the Oct. 4 date for a home opener. Wooster's first game is at Bowling Green Sept. 27.

Officials Claim Pheasants, Rabbits Abound In State

COLUMBUS, Sept. 11.—Pheasants and rabbits were reported in abundance but supplies of other game appeared no better than average to conservation agents today as Ohio neared the fall hunting season.

Advantageously dry weather during the spring nesting season was given principal credit for the bumper rabbit and pheasant crops. Augmenting natural propagation, the state released more than 55,000 pheasant chicks and approximately 15,000 adult birds, including 8,000 trapped on game refuges and transplanted to open hunting areas.

The pheasant distribution was about equal to last year's, but twice that of 1939. Under its new program, the division of conservation and natural resources makes four to eight week old birds available instead of sending out pheasant eggs.

Season Later Here
Squirrels were reported as fairly plentiful in southern Ohio where the Sept. 15-30 season inaugurates the fall shooting program. The supply was listed as below par, however, in many of the 36 northern counties where the season runs Sept. 22-30.

The ruffed grouse population, concentrated in the southeastern section, appeared on the upgrade, due principally to improved habitat provided by the division.

In the flat northwestern counties, on the other hand, a decline was noted in the volume of Hungarian partridge. War conditions made it impossible to obtain importations from Europe this year.

While no reports on waterfowl were available, conservation experts viewed as a good omen the federal fish and wildlife service's retention of the 60-day season this year.

NAME NEW COACH AT DAMASCUS SCHOOL

DAMASCUS, Sept. 11.—James Clark, of Pomeroy, a graduate of the University of Wisconsin, will be coach at Goshen Township High school during the coming year, it was announced today.

Clark, a graduate of Marietta High school, will also be a science teacher.

Cardinals Move To Within One Game As Dodgers Lose Two; 75,000 Fans Expected

(By Associated Press)
ST. LOUIS, Sept. 11.—Two paths which have run side by side, intersected at times and never been out of sight of the other, converge today as Brooklyn and the Cardinals clash in a vital three-game series.

The Red Birds, as a result of their twin killing over the Phillies yesterday while the Dodgers dropped two to Chicago, are just one game behind pace-setting Brooklyn.

"Are we pointing for this series?" questioned Manager Billy Southworth. "Why, hell no, Brooklyn is just another team to us. . . . We'll be playing just another game."

Southworth designated "Lefty" Ernie White as starting hurler today against Brooklyn's probable started, fat Fred Fitzsimmons.

But if the series is just three more games to the Cardinals, it's a preliminary World Series to fans.

From 65,000 to 75,000 are expected at Sportsman's Park, and as early as last night this Mississippi river metropolis took on a highly festive air.

St. Louis Jammed
Hotels were filled. Night spots were jammed and baseball definitely stole the show from such other headline topics as war, national defense and President Roosevelt's scheduled address tonight.

Orders for tickets came from Canada to Florida and west to Texas. The final game Saturday is sold out.

The two teams, have collided 29 times already this season with St. Louis winning 19, Brooklyn nine, and one game ending in a tie after 12 innings. They have played every day for five months and have arrived at this critical point in the schedule with only a single game separating them in the standings.

If Brooklyn wins two and loses one it will have a two-game lead. If St. Louis wins two the teams will wind up in a virtual tie.

"Bums" Ambushed
The "Bums" from Brooklyn were bruised and beleaguered by an ambush at Chicago yesterday. Up till then they had hoped to parade into St. Louis and sail away the pennant with an impressive display of fireworks in the enemy's own yard. They had a three-game lead and were cocky.

It was a terrible shock, therefore.

PUPPET LOVE by Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr.

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

The interior of the Bentz trailer was not as complete as that of Nemesis.... Everything in the place worked on levers. The beds, which folded on each side, opened simultaneously by pulling an oar-like arrangement, in the wall. As these oar levers were placed over each bed, it required the drag of two people to open them. The operation of only one lever jammed the works.

"What did you do with Mrs. Bentz?" Chris asked finally when they had opened and closed the beds, and inspected the kitchen.

"I took her to her mother's, just ten miles on. They were headed there anyway and had been quarrelling because Mrs. Bentz didn't want to go home and Mr. Bentz wanted her to. Finally, he took the car and went back north. And I bought the trailer for ten dollars."

"Just a busted home on wheels," she said mournfully as they settled down to lunch. "Sometimes I think this trailer business is going to be a menace. What's to stop relations from parking on your front lawn for months? And imagine the divorce courts!" Nicky rattled on gaily. "Who gets the custody of the trailer, and who gets the car?"

"Why do people always think of dividing—breaking up—as though nothing ever lasted?" Chris demanded with sudden fury. "Why do people always want to talk about divorce.... custody.... separation?" "Well.... well.... well...." Nicky said slowly. "You lack the light touch this morning, Mr. Allen."

"I still don't understand it," Chris blustered. "Isn't there any security in life?"

"Not until sixty-five," Nicky grinned, "but who, pray, are you to be talking of security? You sound like Rodney Baddington Grant."

"They have the least security." "Try and tell that to some of the lads we meet on the road who don't know where their next meal is coming from."

"I don't mean financial—though that's comparative, too. But the things that really count, you can't buy, and if you do buy them, what good are they?" Nicky stood, coffee-pot in hand, and stared at him. "It must be the sun," she said softly. "You worked too long in the heat this morning. You're being frightfully unoriginal. But I agree with you; otherwise I'd be at Newport or Maine now. So why argue with yourself?"

It was unoriginal—but not to Chris. Hadn't he been raised on the theory that millions and social position were all that counted? Hadn't he discovered they mattered comparatively little? So few people had them.... He was silent.

"Don't tell me your luck has failed you," Nicky said quickly. "Luck!" It was the perfect cue. "My luck was never better. Just to prove it," he pulled the cards from his pocket. "I make a wish—" He closed his eyes and ran his finger along the edge of the deck. "The nine of hearts."

He produced a card and flung it on the little table between them. It was the cardiac nine.

"Not bad," Nicky admitted. "Where did you get those?" "They're old," he admitted truthfully.

Funny I never saw them before," Nicky murmured.

"Strange, never thought of it," he retorted. "Now travel, for instance, and money...."

He recited his lesson parrotwise, and turned the cards to support it. Nicky sat forward, her brown arms folded on her knees, her blue eyes thoughtful.

"They're all good cards," she said finally. "How about delays and bad breaks and disappointments?"

"They don't come to me," he said excitedly. "I'm going good now. I can wish anything and get it."

"Suppose you let me try." She reached across the table and drew two cards. Anxiously he watched as she turned the worn cardboards. They were the ace and the nine of spades!

Nicky smiled, and began clearing the luncheon dishes. "I can call the bad ones. But I don't like any destiny that can be fixed—whether it's all good or all bad. Life" and her eyes met Chris' gaze steadily, "isn't like that."

It was at sundown two days later, in a trailer camp on the edge of piney scrub, that Aloysius P. Bring caught up with them again. The very sight of his car made Chris bristle. It looked so spotless and cheerful. When the engine missed, it gave a happy hiccup. The gleaming headlights created the effect of a man smirking behind highly polished spectacles—it actually looked like Bring. The night smoldered with a fierce enervating heat but Bring stepped out immaculate in linen suit and white shoes.

Chris carrying a bucket of water from the pump.... "Fresh spring water—no extra charge!"

"My word, what's this?" Bring demanded, stopping abruptly.

"My new trailer," Chris explained, coming up behind him.

"What do you think of it?" Nicky called, joining them in the inspection. "And where have you been all these days?"

"Waiting for my laundry, for one thing," Bring explained precisely, while he inspected the trailer, "and then I found a particular type of Calosoma scrutator which I think may be related...."

"My voice trailed off as he opened the door and peered inside."

"I say, there's no bed, is there?" "Let's show him," said Nicky, leading the way. She and Chris took their places at the oars, and the beds descended slowly to the floor. "See," she rose and dusted her hands. "I put him to bed every night now."

A faint flush stained Bring's clear skin and his pale brows did the best they could with a scowl. "They got the idea from the Arabs," Nicky went on. "All but the 'silently steal away.' You can hear us go or come for miles. We call it the 'Screaming Arab!'"

Bring's composure had returned though his disapproval still showed, so that his mustache bristled.

"You know this is not a bad idea," he admitted, "very compact and light and plenty of room really—plenty of room for two." His cheerfulness increased. "I say, Chris, why can't I just travel along with you now? It would cut your expenses a bit."

"Oh, we are on the path of the butterflies!" Chris demanded.

"Your route does follow my itinerary within a few miles."

"I think it would be ducky!" Nicky grinned.

"You don't seem to favor it," Bring addressed Chris accusingly. They were seated on the steps of Nemesis by that time.

"I? It doesn't matter to me," Chris shrugged. "But it will be at your own risk."

"The elements?" Bring demanded, carefully inserting a cigarette into an ivory holder. "I'm quite willing to chance that. A bit of roughing does us all good."

"Not the elements—far more serious," Chris packed his pipe thoughtfully. "I have told this to very few people, but I have a Macbethian complex. In the family for centuries. It usually displays itself on the distaff side but it fell upon me in this generation."

"What is that?" Bring and Nicky asked together.

"I walk in my sleep," Chris said solemnly, "with knives!"

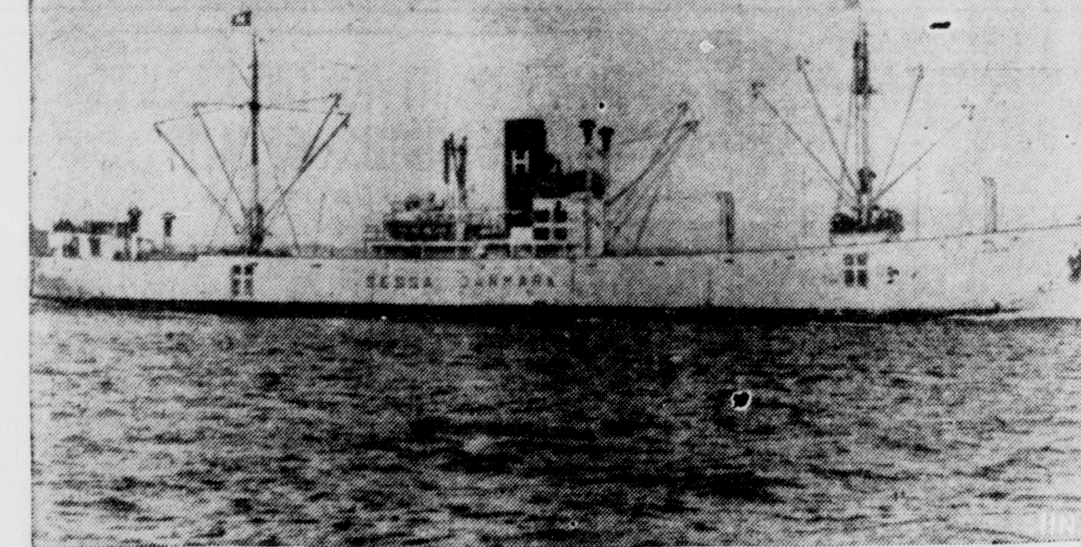

"Oh!" murmured Bring. Nicky said nothing.

Chris went on quickly. "Of course, I haven't had an attack in years. It might never return...."

"Never return...." Bring repeated nervously. "Macbethian complex.... I've studied them all. Freud, Kraft-Ebing, and never heard of it."

"It's rare." "I'll say it is," Nicky muttered. "Of course, it may never return."

Bring reiterated. "But thanks just the same for telling me—Guess you are a bit crowded—Right now you are going inland and I'm following the coast."

"But when you're traveling our way," Chris urged cordially, "you're most welcome. Tomorrow we are playing twenty miles down the coast, and we don't start inland until Friday...."

"Very nice of you, but I'm staying right in this vicinity.... not in this immediate vicinity. Tonight I planned on traveling fifty miles. Thought we might just have a snack together...."

Thus they traveled without benefit of Bring that week. The July heat rose with every mile. It danced in waves across the fields where rows of darkies worked, or a lone man with a mule moved slowly. Clouds of red dust enveloped them, stinging eyes and nose, and adding a scaling windburn to the deep tan.

Then suddenly rain would come, leaving the air fresh and fragrant.

Once a big wind had put "The Screaming Arab" into a ditch. Another night they camped beside a stream, only to have a heavy rain change it into a roaring torrent in an hour and mire them hub-deep in red mud.

But usually Chris found the going fine and the misadventures only added a zest to the journey. The Screaming Arab also helped. Chris had acquired so many possessions enroute. There were two chests of tools on board now, and some good ones, Chris knew. He could gauge a tool by the feel.... the weight of a hammer, the pull of a wrench. He could listen to a motor and diagnose its trouble.

He writhed, remembering a school of engineering in the same group of austere old buildings where he had muddled over Latin, Greek and the drear details of finance. Mathematics were simple, absorbing, when you were determining to the nth fraction of a piston ring, or the degree of variation in a trailer hitch.

Could it be that—despite the family name—he had inherited the talents of his late grandfather, Samuel Allen, a locomotive engineer, who had invented a gadget that enabled him to get into steel, and copper, and Wall Street and Fifth Avenue?

Gradually out of that interest, a new plan began to dawn—a plan involving the legacy of Uncle Bradley, and a gadget for the simple hitching of trailers. If only Nicky's faith could be held, in spite of the failure of other engagements to materialize—if only his mother could be kept placated....

Life-Long Resident Of Trumbull County Realizes At Once That Ton Jon Was The Medicine For Her

Was Afflicted With Stomach and Gall Bladder Disorders. Would Feel Bilious and Dizzy Due to Sluggish Liver. TONJON Proved Effective In Relieving All Her Distress

MRS. CHAS. ELOPH

"Eight years ago I began suffering with gall bladder and stomach ailments and my condition grew worse as the years went by," declares Mrs. Charles Eloph, Leavittsburg, Ohio, near Warren. Mrs. Eloph is a member of the Christian Church.

"I used to have severe attacks of dizziness and biliousness that annoyed me a large portion of the time. I had intense pains in the region of the gall bladder and in my stomach. An abundance of gas formed in my stomach after meals because my food didn't digest properly. My heart fluttered because of the pressure that gas formed against my heart. I was very nervous and became miserably tired and worn out."

"I read about TONJON and its merits a few months ago and purchased some to see if it would do as much for me as it had done for others. I knew at once that it was the right medicine for me. Those gas pains in my stomach have left and I don't feel dizzy and bilious like I did before using TONJON. My heart doesn't flutter, and I feel as though I could walk any distance and wouldn't feel tired. Thanks to TONJON, I feel almost as if I had been reborn."

If you suffer in this way, get some TONJON at once instead of being sorry later that you put it off. The TONJON Health Representative at Broadway Lease Drug Store, Salem, Ohio, will gladly explain how TONJON will help you.
